Rosenblatt Hires Veteran Semiconductor Analyst Hans Mosesmann

New York, NY, February 13, 2017. Rosenblatt Securities is pleased to announce it has hired veteran semiconductor-industry analyst Hans Mosesmann. An electrical engineer who spent a decade working at chipmakers Texas Instruments and Advanced Micro Devices before moving to Wall Street in 1996, Mosesmann is known and respected for his coverage of such companies as AMD, Intel, Micron Technologies and Nvidia.

Mosesmann spent a decade at Raymond James Financial covering the semiconductor industry. Prior to Raymond James, he worked as an equity analyst for several technology- and growth-company-focused boutiques, including Needham & Co., Volpe Brown Whelan and Soundview Securities, as well as Prudential Securities.

“As we continue to build our fundamental-research offering, having the very best analysts is key of course,” said Rosenblatt President & COO Joe Gawronski. “So we’re excited to add someone of Hans’ caliber.”

Added Evan Morgan, head of research sales: “Hans brings to Rosenblatt deep industry knowledge and Silicon Valley contacts, as well as specific product and technology know-how. The clients with whom we’ve spoken regard him very highly.”

Mosesmann holds a Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering from the University of Florida and an MBA in Finance from Loyola University of Maryland.
